DEVELOPMENTS PUZZLE DEFENSE

Tension Is Great Now in the McNamara Case.

MORE SENSATIONS EXPECTED HOURLY

"Frame-Up," Declares Lawyers for Defense.

Yesterday's Sensational Arrests Completely Eclipse the Regular Routine in Case and Whispers That Will Not Down Declare the End Is Not Yet in Sight—Special Grand Jury May Be Called.

Special to Cable. Cal., Nov. 29.—"It's a damned frame-up. The man that owns this vast sum of money, come what will prove his property, and he used to try to bribe a juror I will give it to Deputy Attorney Fredricks. All real information I have has been from the newspapers. I have no knowledge of any case of bribery in fact, not even suggestion, and everybody knows no knows how futile such a story is. But then, what can we do. We told our friends we would come before we went to bed. I will show my check book and accounts at the district attorney will say when and where such day money was drawn." Clarence Darrow.

"No man who says I would bribe anybody is a liar. I got those men with the goods."—Samuel Browne, chief of Fredricks' secret service.

"This is a 'frame-up' and I will prove it. Wait until the truth is told, that is all"—Lecompte Davis, of the McNamara defense.

While both sides deny any complicity in a job, the fact remains today that there is $4,000 in actual cash in the safe in District Attorney Fredricks' Office without an owner, it is alleging it was used to bribe a prospective juror in the case. James B. McNamara, accused murder in connection with the destruction of the Los Angeles Times. The defense charges pointedly that the money was contributed by the Merchants' & Manufacturers' association to discredit Clarence McNamara's lawyers, on the eve of opening the trial.

Whispers Won't Down.

Today's sensational developments completely eclipsed the regular routine in the case, which confronted Judge Bordwell today, with whispers that will not down that the end is not yet in sight. Deputy Attorney Fredricks is said to be considering demands that a new grand jury be summoned immediately. If that is done it will be necessary to take the matter again before Darrow came into court today and it is stated that he will make no move at present.

"We have asked so far has been granted," Darrow said, "and we are very well satisfied if we can get. All we can say about the case selected is that any fair-minded person can read what Judge Bordwell ruled and draw his own conclusions."

The feeling is very great and a climax may be reached at

COMBINE TO FIGHT STEEL CORPORATION

Cleveland Plants Form Alliance To Make Steel.

Cleveland, Nov. 29.—A determined effort of independent steel companies to fight the United States Steel corporation is seen here today in the announcement that three of the biggest independent firms in Ohio will be merged. The Bourne-Fuller company will take over the Upson Nut company in a $5,100,000 transaction and these companies will form an alliance with the Union Rolling Mills company.

The operations of the three concerns will include the entire process of steel manufacturing, from the making of pig iron to the production of finished steel plates, structural steel, bars and other material.

NEW BERLIN BANK SAFE IS DRILLED

But Yeggs Get $900 Only, Leaving $3,500 Behind.

New Berlin, O., Nov. 29.—Cracksmen early today drilled the safe of the New Berlin Banking company, reached the inner compartment where $3,500 was within their reach, and then fled without obtaining the money. They escaped with $50 in cash and $900 in stamps, taken from the outer compartment of the safe.

The burglars had prepared for their work by turning out the lights of the town and sprinkling pepper about the bank so that bloodhounds could not take up their trail. It is believed the men were frightened away before finishing the job.

AGED MOTHER MADE HAPPY

When Governor Pardons Son from Prison.

LIFE TERMER IS GIVEN FREEDOM

Sent Up for Murder from Butler County.

Prisoner Is Speechless with Joy When Warden Unlocks His Cell Door, Declaring Him a Free Man at Dawn of Thanksgiving Day. Convict Thinks First of Mother. Wants To Write Her News.

Columbus, O., Nov. 29.—Governor Harmon today brought sunshine into the life of aged Mary A. Sherman, of Rushville, Indiana, by granting the annual Thanksgiving day pardon from the penitentiary to her son, Charles F. Sherman, thirty-five, serving life from Butler county for the murder of his wife. He will be freed Thursday morning.

Sherman, who was a railroader, was convicted in January, 1905, of second degree murder. Evidence showed that he arrived home from work one wintry night and attempted to kiss his wife. She retaliated by slapping his face. Enraged, Sherman seized a chair and brought it down over his wife's head. She died within an hour.

The murdered woman's name was Effie May Roby-Steading-Connory-Sherman. She was ten years Sherman's senior and had been married thrice before she met Sherman. Her first two husbands divorced her and Connory died.

Loses His Temper.

Sherman had been told that his wife was untrue to him, but he had refused to believe it. When his wife refused his caresses on the fatal night, the stories he had heard rushed to his mind and his temper got the better of him.

After Sherman killed his wife, realizing the enormity of his crime, he attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a small pen-knife. Physicians staunched the flow of blood and saved his life.

Sherman's family in Indiana bears an excellent reputation, many of his former schoolmates and friends joined in the petition to the governor for a pardon. He is a Spanish war veteran.

Sherman was speechless with joy today when Warden Jones unlocked his cell, and told him he would be a free man tomorrow. He immediately requested that his mother be telegraphed the good news.

BODIES FLOAT DOWN YANGTSE

As Vultures Hovering About Add Horror to Scene.

WU CHANG STREETS RED WITH BLOOD

The Result of Most Hideous Killing of Rebels.

Victorious Imperial Troops Mow Down Victims by Hundreds, the Rebels' Camp Becoming Utterly Cut to Pieces—Torn by Dissensions, Few Rebels Left Flee for Lives—Fighting in Nanking.

Hankow, Nov. 29—The victorious imperial troops are engaged in one of the most hideous slaughters of the present war. Wu Chang and Han Yang are running red with blood. Hundreds of bodies of the Manchus' victims are floating down the Yangtse. Swarms of vultures hovering over the river, adding to the horror of the scene.

The rebel army, terribly crippled by the several days' fighting at Han Yang and Wu Chang, is torn with dissensions and it is admitted by its leaders with the situation is most critical. The rebel camp could be seen last night from a hill just outside of Han Yang, but today it has disappeared. The loss of Han Yang has been a severe blow to the revolutionary cause. The mint, arsenal, powder factory and other important institutions in that city had kept General Li's army well supplied with money and ammunition. Now the rebels, in a panicky rout, are unable to get ammunition and hundreds of the soldiers are without arms, having thrown away their guns during the retreat from Wu Chang.

One of the forms of amusement that the imperialists have adopted is bayonet practice upon living targets. The victims, terribly wounded, are left where they fell until death puts an end to their agonies. Even women and children are not spared.

Rebels Control City.

Nanking, Nov. 29.—The rebel troops are now in possession of practically the entire city of Nanking. The imperial forces under Lieutenant General Feng Kwo Chang have lost heavily during the last two days, and are in imminent danger of annihilation, unless they are speedily reinforced.

The rebel forces succeeded in entering the city through three different gates late yesterday. The imperial troops concentrated at the east gate for the last desperate stand and succeeded in driving the rebel forces back into the center of the city, taking the latter by surprise while many of the soldiers were looting.

A fierce encounter ensued in the center of the city and many were slain on both sides. The city probably would have been retaken had not a wing of the revolutionary army entering through the east gate, flanked General Feng's forces. The imperialists were forced to turn and flee out of the east gate, after cutting their way through the flanking division. The loss of the imperial troops is estimated at 1,600. General Feng is said to have made a stand just out of the eastern part of the city.

The foreign officers in General Feng's army are said to have been severely wounded in yesterday's fighting.

AID COMES TO STARVING FAMILY

Chicago Woman Brickmaker Is Offered Good Job.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Mrs. Anna Godfrey, who was found exhausted after she had cut her hair short, donned male attire and tramped to Rogers park in the hope of getting work as a farm hand to support her sick husband and hungry children, has been offered employment as a brickmaker in a factory in New Straitsville, Perry county, Ohio.

Mrs. Godfrey was a brickmaker back in the old days when she and her husband toiled in Germany, when she turned out 1,000 bricks every day.

Rogers M. Combs, vice president of the Thomas Moulding company, offers to pay for the transportation of the entire family back to the Ohio town if the mother will show him that she can make brick.

Twenty-two dollars in cash, many baskets of fuel, food and clothing found their way to the Godfrey home Tuesday.

GARY PLEADS FOR FAIRNESS

Declares Honest Competition Is All Right.

FEDERAL LICENSE TO BE FAVORED

Remedy for Evils of Restraint of Trade.

Gary Suggests a Number of Things, Including Full Publicity of Affairs of Big Corporations, as Means of Putting Business in Proper Light Before People and Government. What Gary Advocates.

Washington, Nov. 29.—"What is needed is fair, honest and healthy competition," said Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the executive committee of the Steel trust, in a statement on combinations to the senate committee on interstate commerce, today. "Unrestricted competition in the end results in monopoly and restraint of trade," said Gary.

As a remedy for the evils of restraint of trade, Gary recommended:

"Every corporation engaged in interstate commerce shall be required to take out a federal license.

"Full publicity of the affairs of the corporations.

"No over-capitalization.

"Prices to be the same to all customers, with no discrimination among persons or localities.

"Business conducted in conformity with the laws of the United States.

"Creation of a corporation trade commission, with power to grant and suspend and revoke licenses subject to review by the courts.

"The commission shall see the conditions of the licenses were observed and regulate prices so far as necessary to prevent monopoly and restraint of trade. Prices reduced by the commission should be subject to appeal.

People Benefited.

"The great combinations that have been formed in the last fifteen years have been of benefit to the people.

"The resources of these combinations have made it possible to make a study of foreign conditions that have caused an immense increase in the value of exports.

"The financial resources of the combinations have permitted the employment of the ablest men in management and scientific research.

"Large operations make possible economies and conservation of natural resources. Economy in part is due to the fact that one mill is producing one kind of product instead of trying to have one mill produce all kinds of things.

"Combinations have been of benefit in giving employes a profit-sharing opportunity, accident relief and great improvements otherwise in the condition of labor.

"The United States Steel corporation represents 150,000 persons, holders of bonds and stocks, who share in the profit of the business."

Nothing Like Publicity.

"In the control of the big combinations by the government, there is nothing like publicity," said Gary. "It is the first essential. It is said of one who loves darkness his deeds are evil. Men have been troubled as to what their conduct should be under the operation of the Sherman law. There has been great uncertainty and capitalists with money to invest have held back.

MODEL OF THE MAINE TO BE USED BY JOINT BOARD IN ILLUSTRATING REPORT.

"The salvation of the country is in the courts. "I do not believe in the recall of judges. Judges may make mistakes, but every lawyer will beat me out in saying that there is little dishonesty or corruption among judges. I would like to see all judges appointed for life, or good behavior. In case of bad behavior, I would be in favor of removing such an offender in a hurry.

"One of the great causes of disturbance of conditions in this country is the frequency of elections. I would like to see the president elected for eight years and not eligible for reelection. I would like the president after election to be independent and in a frame of mind to look in no direction as to his future. In this I make no personal allusion.

Commission Favored.

"There ought to be a commission like the Interstate Commerce commission with whom business men could confer when in doubt as to a course of action."

As to the famous "Gary dinners" to steel manufacturers, the witness said, they were not for the purpose of raising prices, but to establish stable business conditions. He said, however, that he would be afraid to hold such dinners now. Regarding changing views as to the Sherman law, Gary said that when the Steel corporation took over the Washington-Moen company there was found in the files an interpretation of the law written by the late Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, saying that it would be legal for the company to enter into agreements with other companies in the same business to maintain prices.

I could not do that now, observed Gary.

AMERICANS ARE GIVEN RED HATS

Pope Hands the Berretas to Newly-Created Cardinals.

Rome, Nov. 29.—Pope Pius today presented the new American cardinals Farley, O'Connell and Falconio, with the berretas or informal red hats. This ceremony was performed in the consistorial hall before a distinguished audience in which were a number of Americans.

In conferring the barretas, the Pope indicated that he accepted the cardinals as his own equal. Tomorrow, the American prelates will be invested with the formal red hat. This will complete the ceremony of their elevation to the cardinalate.

JUDGE PARKER IS OUTSPOKEN

Says Money Power Didn't Intend To Aid Him.

PARKER REPLIES TO BARKER CHARGES

Declares Roosevelt Is Backed by Moneyed Men.

Roosevelt Declines To Add Anything Further to Statement Made Last Night, Other Than To Urge Reading of His Message of 1905—Message Refers to Fixing of Rates of Regulation.

New York, Nov. 29.—Judge Alton B. Parker, defeated Democratic presidential candidate in 1904, declared today that the money power never intended to support him for the presidency, as was declared yesterday by Wharton Barker, a Philadelphia banker, before the senate committee, but Judge Parker had no doubt he said, that the Republican leaders were told by money powers that their candidate, Colonel Roosevelt, "must be considerate of the interests of the financiers to secure their support."

Colonel Roosevelt himself left today for Gloucester, Massachusetts, to spend Thanksgiving day. He declined to add to his statement of last night other than to urge a reading of his message of 1905 as the best reply to the Barker charges.

Judge Parker was outspoken in his declaration that the money power never intended to support him, "for it could have had nothing to gain," he said.

But it served their purposes," Parker added, "in order to get Mr. Roosevelt better in leading strings and to that end they withheld their checks for a time and talked out their hostility and undoubtedly spoke occasionally in friendly terms of the opposing candidate. That, in due course, they gave them checks to the Republican national committee as well as their enthusiastic support to Colonel Roosevelt is known to all men."

In his message of 1905 to which he referred his questioners Colonel Roosevelt urged the fixing of a given maximum railroad rate, subject to review by the court. He also demanded legislation to secure supervision and regulation of railroad rates, such as "shall summarily and effectively prevent the imposition of unjust and unreasonable rate."

CONTROLLER BAY PROBE NEAR END

No Evidence of Illegality Is Discovered.

NO BAD FAITH ON PART OF OFFICIALS

Lawyer Brandeis Reports to the Committee.

Brandeis Declares He Finds That Elimination of Large Tract of Land To Aid Controller Bay Railroad Is Opposed to Best Interests of People, but Otherwise Hints That Probe Is Flattened Out.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Announcing that the new Alaskan policy of Secretary of the Interior Fisher, endorsed by President Taft, marks a "reversal of policy," Louis D. Brandeis, in a letter made public today by Chairman Graham, Democrat, of Illinois, of the senate committee on expenditures in the interior department, advised the discontinance of the Controller bay investigation.

The administration view is that the investigation flattened out.

Brandeis acted as counsel for the committee and was assisted by Amos Pinchot, counsel for the National Conservation association, who concurred in his recommendation to the committee. After an exhaustive investigation, Brandeis says that the elimination of a large tract of land in aid of the Controller Railroad & Navigation company, was "opposed to the best interests of the people," but that he found "no evidence of illegality or bay faith on the part of any government officials."

The Brandeis letter says:

"During August and September, the Hon. Walter L. Fisher, secretary of the interior, visited Alaska and October 27 set forth in an address at Chicago before the American mining congress, the results of his investigation. Secretary Fisher's recommendation, he says, will have the support of the president and mark a reversal of the policy of the administration in dealing with the Alaskan problem.

All in Accord.

They provide for the prompt development of Alaskan coal fields in the public interest, the safe guarding of them against private monopoly through the systems of leasing coal mines, the construction and operation of a railroad by the government and the operation of a government-owned coal mine. The adoption by the administration of this policy brings it into accord with the principles underlying the La Follette resolution, the Poindexter bill and the Robinson-Works bill introduced into the senate and house shortly before Secretary Fisher's visit to Alaska.

"On November 6, 1911, after the secretary's return to Washington, Mr. Richard S. Ryan, apparently at the suggestion of Mr. Fisher, consented to the cancellation as illegal of one of the entries made on behalf of his company, being the entry made December 4, 1910, of the parcel in Controller bay known specifically as the 'terminal tract' for the Controller Railroad & Navigation company.

"Your committee has requested me as counsel to explain the papers submitted by the president and other available evidence bearing upon the subject and to advise what further action, if any should be taken by your committee.

"I have made such examination and respectfully report that, in my opinion, no further action by your committee is required.

GIVES UP LIFE TO SAVE A LITTLE GIRL

Nebraska Youth in Chicago Killed Under Train.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—A country youth's battle to make his way in the world of men ended Tuesday when Ernest Weekly, twenty-four years old, threw his life away to save a little girl stranger. A loving mother and father in the rolling Nebraska prairie are waiting for his return to the Thanksgiving dinner, unaware that he is beyond all earthly joys.

Weekly was awaiting a train for Nebraska at the Fifty-Ninth Street station. He heard a scream of horror and saw a young girl standing on the track of a swiftly-rushing express train.

With a bound he was across the tracks.

"Look out, girlie!" he cried, as he came up. "You'll be hurt," he said, as he put his arm about her waist.

With one muscular move he swung her clear of the tracks and danger. But he was too interested in her safety. He did not watch his footing, and as the screaming train whistled its last threat, he tumbled and fell on the tracks.

Weekly was crushed lifeless beneath the wheels before the crowd knew an accident had occurred.

NEW CARDINALS NAMED BY POPE

Nineteen Elected at a Secret Consistory at Vatican.

BUT EIGHTEEN ARE MADE PUBLIC TODAY

Two Americans Are Among Those Honored.

Archbishop John H. Farley, of New York, and Monsignor W. H. O'Connell, of Boston, Are Given Red Hats by Pope's Order—His Holiness Talks on Great Loss Through Italian-Turco War.

Rome, Nov. 27. Nineteen new cardinals were elected at a secret consistory held at the Vatican today. The election amounts practically to no more than a formal ratification of the selections already made by the Pope. His appointments are always approved.

The names of eighteen of the new members of the sacred college were announced several days ago. That of the nineteenth, the Pope stated, would be withheld from the public for the present. It is understood, however, that it is that of the patriarch of Lisbon. Many people had looked to see three names added to the original list of eighteen.

The consistory opened at 9 a. m. and continued for an hour and a half. The Pope and nearly a full representation of the sacred college were present.

The past year, the Pope told the assembled cardinals, was one of mourning for the Catholic church, as the anniversary of its loss, through spoliation by the Italian government, of its temporal power.

The year was also marked, his holiness continued, by the impunity with which Protestant sects by which he was supposed to have referred especially to the Methodists, have opposed the church openly in Rome.

"A malevolent sect hating God and Christian order," as the pontiff referred to the Free Masons, and also, he regretted to tell his auditors, succeeded in separating the church and the state in Portugal, where he hoped, however, that the clergy would continue to oppose those bent on the destruction of true freedom.

Referring to modernism and naturalism, his holiness found comfort in the Catholic world's increasing love for the church and for the eucharist. He was warm in his praise of the eucharist congresses at Cologne, Montreal, London, and Madrid and especially of the latter, commenting on the fact that it was participated in by the king of Spain himself, showing that he remains a true Catholic, and that the best Spanish element wants no laws offensive to religious institutions or severing the ties binding their country to the holy see.

The Pope closed with a prayer to avert disaster from the church in Spain.

Pope's Appointments.

The official list of the Pope's appointments to the sacred college which the consistory ratified today, omitting that of the unannounced nineteenth name is as follows.

Monsignor John M. Farley, archbishop, of New York

Monsignor W. H. O'Connell, archbishop, of Boston

Monsignor Diomede Falconio, archbishop, of Larissa and returning apostolic delegate to the United States, a naturalized American.

Monsignor Francis Bourne, archbishop, of Westminster, London.

Monsignor Antonio Vico, archbishop, of Filippi and papal nuncio to Spain.

Monsignor Nennario Granito de Belmonte, archbishop, of Odessa, and formal papal nuncio to Vienna

Monsignor Gaetano Bisletti, major domo to the Pope.

Monsignor Giovanni Battista Lugari, assessor of the holy office.

Monsignor Basilio Pompili, secretary to the holy council.

Monsignor Jose Maria Cosy Machio, archbishop of Valladolid.

Monsignor Fernando Almaraz Santos, archbishop of Seville.

Monsignor Leon Adolph Amette, archbishop of Paris.

Monsignor Francis Dubillard, archbishop of Chambery

Monsignor Francis Marie Roverie de Cabrieres, bishop of Montpelier.

Monsignor Franz Bauer, archbishop of Olmutz

Monsignor Franz Nagel, archbishop of Vienna.

Father G. Van Rossum, of the Order of the Redemptionists.

Father Ludovic Billot, of the Order of Jesus.

Of the nineteen appointees on the official list, assuming the correctness of the surmise that that of the patriarch of Libson is the nineteenth name, thirteen are foreign and six Italian. The full quota of members of the sacred college is seventy, but death reduced this membership to forty-six of whom twenty-eight were Italians and eighteen foreigners. Thus the present appointments will bring the number of Italians up to thirty-three and of foreigners to thirty-two, still leaving it practically certain that an Italian will be elected Pope at the next conclave

Cosmopolitan College.

The membership of the sacred college is the most cosmopolitan it has ever had, including, again on the assumption that the patriarch of Lisbon is the nineteenth of today's creations, thirty-three Italians, seven Frenchmen, six each of Spaniards and Austrians, four Americans, two each of Germans and Portuguese, and one each from England, Ireland, Holland, Belgium and Brazil.

With four American cardinals—including Cardinal Gibbons and counting Cardinal Falconio as an American—the United States has for the first time in its history, adequate representation in the sacred college.

The newly-created Cardinal Farley will take the official title in the sacred college as bishop of Santa Maria Sopra Minerva, the title held by Cardinal McCloskey, of New York, the first American ever elevated. Cardinal O'Connell's title will be that of bishop of San Callisto, a church attached to the Benedictine monastery of the same name Cardinal Falconio will be bishop of Santa Maria in Aracoeli.

The present consistory is the first in centuries at which so large a number of cardinals were created simultaneously.

The consistory was secret and followed the time-honored forms which have prevailed on such occasions for centuries

Bishops Confirmed.

The American cardinals were notified of their election at the American college here at 11:30 a m Cardinal Falconio responded on behalf of himself and his two companions, Cardinals Farley and O'Connell The ceremony was followed by a great reception in the new cardinals' honor.

Falconio Praises Americans.

Rome, Nov. 27.—Voicing the utmost pleasure at the opportunity to express to the American people his appreciation of the hospitality which he enjoyed during his long residence among them as papal delegate to the United States, Cardinal Falconio sent the following message through the United Press today:

[BY CARDINAL FALCONIO.]

Copyright, 1911, By the United Press.

It gives me great pleasure to express the deep sense of friendship and of gratitude which I feel with regard to all those with whom my official and my personal life brought me into contact in America.

Especially do I wish to express my deep appreciation of the high consideration and kind cooperation extended me by the entire hierarchy of the United States The aid of its members made my official life one of sincere satisfaction.

To the Catholic priests and people, too, my deepest recognition is due They have always shown the highest veneration for the holy father as represented on many occasions by me; and it is one of my happiest duties at Rome, to tell his holiness of his devoted clergy and people in the United States.

Nor can I omit the invariable courtesy which was likewise extended in all my intercourse with my non-Catholic fellow citizens in the United States, including those holding the highest civic positions. I shall always retain the most pleasant recollections of their friendship and good will, and I pray that God may bless and prosper all the diverse social elements of that great country and may this prayer render all partakers in its still greater future.

Appointments Ratified.

Rome, Nov. 27.—The secret consistory summoned for today to ratify the Pope's recent appointments to the college of cardinals, began in the hall of consistories at the Vatican at 9 a. m. The Pope and nearly a full representation of the present members of the college were present. There is the form of an election of the new cardinals, but for all practical purposes appointment by the Pope is final, his selections always being approved. There were eighteen names on the official list of appointees, but it is more than likely that today's consistory will be followed by announcement that three others have since been added to the list of the original eighteen.

In the famous hall of the consistories, at the Pope's right on the papal throne, sat Cardinal Oreglia, dean of the sacred college. Other members of the college, in the red robes and violet, ermine-trimmed cloaks of their rank, and with black-clad chaplains as train bearers, ranged themselves along the walls.

Pope Puts Question.

With the formal opening of the consistory, the Pope whispered to the college dean the names of the new nominations to the cardinalate and to each of these names the dean whispered his approval. Following the dean, each of the other cardinals took his seat at the Pope's side, approaching the throne in order of seniority. As he whispered each name, the Pope put the question in Latin "How seems this to you?"

And also in Latin, each member replied:

"It pleases me," or, if a dissentient: "It pleases me not."

When the last cardinal had signified approval of the nominations, the names were openly announced by the Pope, with the time-honored formula:

"Thanks be to God, we have, in regard to the persons to be created, the agreement of all the brethren."

As the Pope named each of the newly-elected cardinals, his holiness made the required sign of the cross three times, repeating each time:

"In the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost."

As had been previously announced by the Pope, a public consistory will be held November 30, at which the red hats, the insignia of the cardinalate, will be formally presented to those new cardinals then in Rome. Of those who fail to arrive in time, some will have their red hats sent to them by "monsignors" with escorts of the noble guard, while a few, like the Spanish and Austrian cardinals, will receive theirs from the rulers of the countries in which they live.

GREY'S SPEECH WIDENS BREACH

Practically Charges Germany with Bad Faith.

LONG-HERALDED TALK DELIVERED

Strained Relations Between the Powers Admitted.

The Foreign Secretary's Admission That Relations Between Three Greatest Nations of Europe, Germany, France and England, Are of Most Delicate Character, Creates Sensation in Great Britain.

London, Nov. 27.—That the relations between France, Germany and England still are "serious and delicate" was admitted this afternoon in the house of commons by Foreign Secretary Grey, in making his long-heralded speech regarding the Moroccan situation.

Sir Edward Grey's speech was particularly sensational, for the high English official practically charged Germany with acting in bad faith in the entire African imbroglio. It is conceded on all hands that the speech, instead of conciliating Germany and England, will open the breach wider.

The galleries were jammed with notables when Sir Edward rose to speak this evening. American Ambassador Whitelaw Reid's presence was regarded as an indication that the United States is watching the situation with keen eyes.

Grey's admission that the relations between the three greatest nations of Europe were still of the most delicate character and that their importance and seriousness was appreciated by the English foreign office created a widespread sensation.

In the very beginning of this, his important speech, Sir Edward intimated that Herr Kiderlin-Waechter, German minister of foreign affairs, had not disclosed the situation fully and frankly.

The German ambassador in London informed him July 1, said Sir Edward, that the cruiser, Panther, then at Agadir, which was claimed by France as within its sphere of influence, would leave there as soon as it became certain German lives and property there were safe. Instead of recalling the cruiser, however, the German government appeared to have reopened the entire question of the European powers' respective rights in Morocco which every-one else assumed to have been settled by Algeciras treaty.

Grey Is Most Frank.

Grey told the ambassador candidly that he did not consider the Kaiser's attitude disinterested.

Unless England was included as a party to any new settlement between Germany, France and Spain, Grey added in his talk with the ambassador, the British would consider the old treaty completely abrogated and the whole Moroccan question again open for discussion among the powers. They certainly did not propose to have the old treaty practically made over without having something to say about it. More than this, said the foreign minister, England was most anxious concerning the cession to Germany, proposed by the Kaiser, in compensation for the fatherland's withdrawal from Agadir, of a part of the French Congo. England, too, had African interests which might be prejudiced by such a cession.

The German ambassador, failing to reply to these representations, the English government decided the English public might be misled by silence and had Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George make his famous Mansion house speech, in which was plainly expressed England's determination to protect its interests against any other power in the world, Germany being obviously referred to as the one he meant

Not Meant as Threat.

The Mansion house speech, Sir Edward pointed out, was not meant as a threat, but as a dignified assertion of British rights The German ambassador complained of it, however, but voiced his complaint in such a tone that the English foreign office thought it undignified to notice it.

England does now, went on the speaker, support a provocative attitude by either France or Russia, its two allies, toward Germany, but the English government does emphatically consider that a power like Germany, with the largest army in the world and a growing navy, should do everything possible to allay the natural apprehension in Englishmen's minds that it has no aggressive intentions toward Great Britian, which desires only to live on equal terms with the fatherland.

It must be borne in mind, said the minister, that no improvement in Anglo-German relations will be thought of at the expense of sacrificing England's friendship with other countries. Nevertheless, Sir Edward admitted that he thought it would be wise for England to expand as little as possible in future and especially in Africa England is unable to force the peace in improving relations with Germany, but if Chancellor Berthmann-Hollweg's recent pacific speech in the Reichstag had been correctly interpreted, England was ready to respond cordially.

PLATINUM MUCH IN DEMAND NOW

Not Only for Jewel Setting, but for Auto Magnetos.

Gold as a mounting for precious stones in high-class jewelry has almost disappeared. In the Fifth avenue shops one can look over hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of ornaments without seeing anything but a platinum mounting.

This has resulted in a tremendously increased demand for that metal, which naturally would have put the price up, especially as the supply is limited. But to make matters worse from the point of view of the buyer the automobile makers cornered the platinum market because they need it and need it badly in their business.

Platinum is an essential metal in the making of the magneto, and the demand from auto makers coming simultaneously with the rage for platinum mountings in jewelry is sending the price up by almost daily increases. It now costs dealers twice as much as gold. Whereas the latter metal can be bought around seventy-five cents a pennyweight, platinum costs $1.25 to $1.50. But platinum mounted jewelry is even more expensive relatively because it is so much more difficult to work.

Gold, of course, being quite soft, is always alloyed with some other metal before being used as a mounting for precious stones. Platinum seems as hard as steel in comparison. It is not alloyed but is used pure, which helps to account for the difference in price. In the case of lorgnettes, for instance, those which are not set with stones show how gold has yielded first place, and by a large margin too. In them the entire value is in the metal mountings, and the platinum ones cost at least three times as much as the gold ones.

But while the turn of fashion doubtless has much to do with the vogue of the former, there is more than mere caprice to recommend it. Platinum is more durable because of its hardness. It never tarnishes; if you have an alleged platinum mounting that tarnishes you may be sure you have been cheated and that it is silver, a piece of deceit that is often practised by foreign jewelers in selling to tourists. And it is the ideal setting for stones, especially for diamonds, as the color harmonizes better than the yellow of gold does and also has the happy faculty of making a gem set in it look larger than it really is. And yet a jeweler said the other day:

"Everything is platinum now, and it seems to have a great future ahead of it. But we do not lose sight of the fact that gold has been used for jewelry and ornaments ever since it was discovered. It probably will continue to be used that way indefinitely. Just at present any pretentious piece of jewelry, especially if diamonds predominate among the stones, is made with a platinum mounting. Nothing else is considered."—New York Sun.

SPOILS PLOT TO HANG THE JURY

Chief Investigator for McNamaras Arrested.

CAUGHT IN ACT OF OFFERING BRIBE

Prospective Juror Is Tendered "Earnest Money."

Detectives for the State Allege They Saw Accused Man Hand Over the Cash Amounting to $500, as Part Payment of $1,000 in Order To Get Juror To Hang the Jury—Causes a Sensation.

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 28.—Bert Franklin, former deputy United States marshal here, and now chief investigator for the McNamara defense, was arrested today by Samuel Browne, chief investigator for the prosecution, on charge of attempting to bribe G. N. Lockwood, a prospective juror in the McNamara trial. Brown asserted that he and Detectives Ferko, Ong and Campbell and Homes saw Franklin pass $500 to Lockwood at the corner of Third and Main streets this morning. Lockwood was also arrested.

A man named "Cap" White, about whom little could be ascertained, was also arrested. The three men were taken to District Attorney Fredricks' office where they were "sweated" before being sent to jail to await arraignment.

Counsel for the defense deny that they know anything about the alleged bribery. Attorney Lecompte Davis said Franklin was employed by the defense to investigate the antecedents of talesmen, and that was his only connection with the case.

State Detective Browne delares that he has known for some time of an attempt to interfere with talesmen and that he had been working on the case for several weeks. He insisted that, when the whole truth is known, it would furnish a sensation paralleling the original arrest of the McNamaras.

"Earnest Money."

Browne further charged that the $500 which he alleged was paid to Lockwood, was "earnest money" for the payment of $4,000 to hang the jury.

White and Wood were both released later, District Attorney Fredericks saying there was no formal charge against them, although a formal charge of attempting to bribe a juror was placed against Franklin.

It was also positively asserted in Fredericks' office that other arrests are imminent, being intimated that the person who is alleged to have furnished Franklin the money is under surveillance.

Newspaper men importuned Detective Browne to give them further details of the arrests, but he declined. When asked if it were true that a person prominently connected with the McNamara defense was under surveillance, Browne said:

"Wait and see."

The arrests caused an outburst of indignation from Attorney Darrow, who said he considered them part of a plan to influence public sentiment at the outset of the McNamara trial.

CUYAHOGA COUNTY HOLDS THE RECORD

Sends More Convicts to Prison Than Any Other Ohio County.

Columbus, O., Nov. 28.—Crime statistics gathered by Secretary H. H. Shirer of the state board of charities, and which will be made a part of the board's annual report, show that Geauga county is more nearly law-abiding than any other county in the state. In one year there were only three persons in the jail. One was a woman.

The county also is one of the few which sent no persons to state penal institutions. Others are Fayette, Henry, Holmes, Mercer, Monroe, Morgan, Pike, Preble and Union. Mercer and Henry are the two wet counties in the honor list. Those who had no convicts to send to the penitentiary are Adams, Carroll, Crawford, Highland, Logan, Miami, Putnam, Wayne and Wyandot.

Cuyahoga leads all others in number sent to penal institutions. Her record is 162 to the penitentiary and 147 to the reformatory. Others are: Hamilton, penitentiary 68, reformatory, 50; Lucas, penitentiary 70, reformatory 63; Franklin, penitentiary 82, reformatory 11. There have been 16,012 males and 978 females confined in county jails.

DECLARES GOMPERS BECOMES FOSSILIZED

Mine Workers' Journal Says Gompers' Useful Days Are Past.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 28.—Samuel Gompers has been president of the American Federation of Labor too long for the good of the interests he represents, the United Mine Workers' Journal will say in its issue tomorrow. The Mine Workers' official organ will assert that the belief that the holding of too many official positions makes a tyrant of a man, can be applied to Gompers and that the labor federation needs a new leader for the good of labor interests.

In part, the Mine Workers' Journal will say:

"Gompers has long ago served his usefulness to union labor. He has been head of the federation for twenty-five years, and during this time he has become fossilized. His connection with the Civic Federation has robbed him of any value he might be to the labor movement.

"During the last twenty-five years, Gompers has built up a political machine by which he can elect himself. The adoption of the referendum sounds the knell of Gompers and the rank and file of the labor movement will not consent to his election next year."

WILD TALE OF RESTLESS SEA

Told When Sant Anna Drops Her Anchor.

BIG COMBERS WASH SEAMEN TO DEATH

Even Grizzled Marines Weep Like Children.

The Sant Anna, Enroute from Naples to New York, Is Tossed About for Days After Putting Her Nose into the Atlantic, Wild Waters of the Mighty Deep Rushing Over Her Like Gigantic Tidal Wave.

New York, Nov. 28.—A wild tale of the sea, where iron nerves of hardy seamen broke and grizzled marines wept like children, was told when the battered French steamer, Sant Anna, drew up off Quarantine, today, and reported the death of four of her sailors and the serious injury of a number of others. A great wave swept the four men overboard.

The Sant Anna left Naples November 14, bringing twenty-one first cabin, 126 second cabin, and 882 steerage passengers. Heavy seas and high winds were encountered from the moment she stuck her nose into the Atlantic.

November 23, she ran into a southwester against which she fought all morning. Passengers were ordered below and at 10:40, during the most violent part of the storm, there rose without warning a great sea, almost like a tidal wave. Wall-like, the officers say, it seemed to hover above the prow of the vessel and then fell with overpowering force upon decks, washing all before it.

Thrown Off Course.

The vessel was thrown off her course and dropped into the trough of the sea. The helmsman threw the vessel back into the gale. Far astern, Durand, Sarto, Caliste, and Quarrelli, four able-bodied seamen, were swimming in the sea, shrieking for help. Out on the deck, Foixet and Roumon and Pascsetti, a ship's boy, were lying on the deck crushed.

Captain Peavey signaled the engines to stop and the liner turned toward the four seamen who had reached life rafts. Durand, Sarto and Caliste apparently stunned, sank from sight.

Quarrelli fought until the liner dropped him a life rope which he tied about his waist and was hauled back to the deck.

Seaman Foixet's spine was broken and he died two days later.

November 25 a terrific cyclone swept the vessel.

TEN MURDERS ARE LAID TO HER DOOR

She Slays Because Victims Disobey "Church Orders."

With Speech Punctured by Peals of Hysterical Laughter, Woman Under Arrest Recounts Appearance of Victims as They Wriggle in Agony of Death, with Heads Severed in Own Homes.

Lafayette,, La., Nov. 28.—Her speech punctuated by peals of hysterical laughter as she recounted the appearance of her victims after their slaughter, Clementine Barnebat, eighteen,, a negress, today confessed to the police that she had murdered Norbert Randall, a negro, his wife and four children, all under nine years of age, last Sunday night, and that she had assisted in the murders of four members of the Andrus family, also colored, last February. The heads of the ten victims were split open with an axe.

Early Monday morning, neighbors of the Randall family, alarmed at the silence which prevaded the house, broke in the door and discovered the entire family, their heads split open by blows from a sharp instrument. Randall and his wife had been murdered as they lay in bed, while the bodies of the children were on the floor. Further search disclosed the blood-stained axe hidden behind the door.

She Confesses.

Several persons were found who had seen the Barnebat girl in the vicinity late Sunday night and she was arrested on supicion. After a night in the police cell and a touch of the third degree, she confessed today that she had killed the entire Randall family because they refused to obey "church orders." The negress is a deaconess in a negro church at Sacrafice, the Randalls attending the same place of worship.

Under further pressure from the police, the girl admitted that she and her father, also an officer of the church, had killed, in the same manner, the Andrus family of four last February. The Andruses, she said, had also failed to obey the mandates of the church and had been killed, "according to message from God." Two of the Andrus children were under seven years of age.

The police are searching for the girl's father, who has disappeared. The girl will be examined as to her sanity.

DPERATE SHIPS BY ELECTRICITY

Edison Predicts Great Things for Future.

"JUICE" TO PERFORM EVERY FUNCTION

To Work Guns, Hoist Shells and Control Machinery.

Electricity Constitutes Nerves of Great Fighting Ships and, Through It, Many Things Not Now Understood, Will Be Accomplished, Says the Wizard—Edison Has New Talking Moving-Picture.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Predicting that the greatest warships will be operated throughout and propelled by electricity, Thomas A. Edison, "wizard of electricity" following a visit to the navy yard here, said.

"The time is coming—not far off—when electricity will perform every function on a battleship now exercised by steam, oil, or gasoline. Not only is this true of the movement of the big guns, the hoisting of the ammunition and the control of the intricate machinery, but electricity will yet be the motive power with which these great vessels themselves are propelled.

"Electricity constitutes the nerves of a great fighting machine, and through it, many things in the future, not yet completely understood, will be accomplished. Human agency, even now, has been eliminated in many ways, and absolute accuracy obtained, where formerly there was large uncertainty."

Opinion on Trusts.

The wizard of electricity said he was not able to talk politics, but expressed the following opions:

"I fail to see wherein these dissolutions of the trusts are doing any particular good. The Sherman law does not seem to fit as it should. But dissolution is not in reality destroying the trusts. It simply permits them to dissolve after a fashion and then reorganize in various states with the same general stockholders and directors and continue as separate companies, doing what they have been forbidden to do by the courts as one big company. There is something wrong in that condition that should be remedied, for if the one condition is an evil the other certainly is, too."

Another Invention.

At the White House Mr. Edison had an interview with President Taft, whom he told about his new and wonderful machine that combines the phonograph and the moving-picture. This he told the president would make it possible for a public speaker or singer to appear before the public without personally making long and uncomfortable journeys.

"With this machine," said Mr. Edison, "the audience not only sees the gestures of the speaker, but hears his voice. Its usefulness can not be overestimated."

Mr. Edison said the machine had been so far perfected that if the Republican campaign committee wishes to avail itself of it in the coming presidential campaign it would be ready. The president smiled genially at the idea, but did not commit himself.

THOMAS F. RYAN A DIAMOND KING

Wealth Comes from Partnership with King of Belgium.

New York, Nov. 28.—The first fruits of Thomas Fortune Ryan's business partnership with the late King Leopold, of Belgium, have reached the New York custom-house. They are 240 uncut diamonds. What they are worth has not been determined.

Ryan was surprised to find himself a diamond king. In 1906 he became Leopold's chief business partner by putting up the greater part of $1,500,000 for the Congo Free State concessions. He had hazy dreams of being a rubber king. Instead, he finds himself the principal owner of a diamond "farm" of 166,000 acres. Ryan has had a force of twenty-five engineers and prospectors at work in the Congo for two years. Today's shipment of diamonds was the first result of their work.

OLDEST "NEW WOMAN"

FALSE PRETENSE OF DEMOCRATS

Seen in the Boosted Salaries of Office-Holders.

BUCKEYE STATE PAYS THE PIPERS

While Democratic Officials Are Much Enriched.

Many Departments Under the Harmon Administration Are Given Additional Money Which Will Run into Thousands of Dollars—Political Artifice Plays Big Part in So-Called "Business" Idea.

Columbus, O., Nov. 28.—This is the third story of the boosting of salaries during the Democratic administration. It will take more than as many more to cover all the departments in which salaries and incidental expenses, too, have been increased, for only one, that of public health, has not been enriched.

Four officials with salaries aggregating $1,830 a year have been added in the department of the secretary of state. The appropriation for the distribution of books and papers is increased from $3,000 to $7,500.

The bureau of vital statistics was given $750 for an assistant compiling clerk and $1,500 for an added inspector. Some facts in regard to this department are of interest. Three months or so ago doctors declined to comply with a law which required them to make and mail medical certificates without compensation for time or remuneration of postage. Issue was joined, and the supreme court held the law unconstitutional. So the department can secure only incomplete statistics and incomplete statistics are valueless. But the thirty persons in the bureau are still paid salaries and two are now added. This is the business administration promised. It is all political business.

Some Other Increases.

The commissioner of fish and game, who got $18,000 in 1910, is given $19,000 in 1911, and $20,000 for 1912. But, of course, fish and game add a year's growth each year which makes them more difficult to control.

The bureau of labor statistics is given an increase from $10,000 to $13,000 for contingent expenses—whatever those are in a statistical bureau. But the expense of the commissioner in visiting labor organizations to secure resolutions for Harmon were considerable.

An appropriation of $2,700 was made for an inspector of locomotive boilers, it being assumed that the railways did not look after the fitness of their engines. The governor vetoed seven bills affecting his railway clients, but not this one. The state pays what it costs.

The board of agriculture, which had $112,000 in 1910, was given an appropriation of $172,250 for this year and $133,000 for the next.

The state library, now adorned by Mr. John Henry Newman, was given an extra $6,000. The increase in salary of Mrs. Hollingsworth, who got $1,000 from the treasury through the conspiracy of the secretary, the lady and the convict, is included in this amount.

Fifteen departments remain to be covered in this serial story of Democratic false pretense and true graft.

Saturday Evening.

Saturday evening marked the close of the fifth annual show of the Marion Fanciers' company in the big Tent on the Evans lot. Those in charge of the show, which was in progress the greater part of the week, declare it to have been the most successful show ever given by the company.

The attendance during the week was not so large as was anticipated, but, for the most part, a great interest was shown. Saturday the closing day, the attendance was excellent. Those who inspected the exhibit during the week were well pleased. Many, not only from the city, but also from the various surrounding cities, attended the show which was the first of the season of the state.

No little satisfaction is shown by the promoters in the fact that it was decided to hold the show in a tent this year. They say that the plan is an excellent one, and that in the future the shows will be regularly held under a tent.

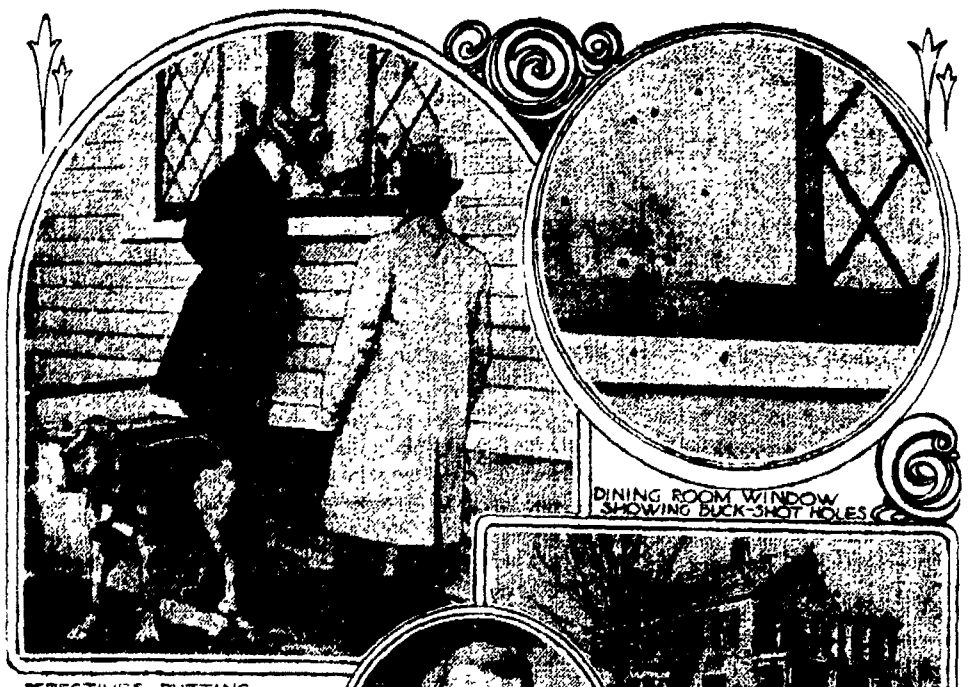
A Balloon Passes.

A big balloon, with two passengers, passed over the farm of B. M. Morris, a mile and a quarter southwest of Hepburn, Monday afternoon about 1:20 o'clock. It was headed northeast, and was about 500 feet high when seen by Mr. Morris. He could not make out the name on a banner attached between the bag and the basket.

MYSTERY IN ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF WEALTHY MERCHANT



DINING ROOM WINDOW SHOWING BUCK-SHOT HOLES

DETECTIVES PUTTING BLOODHOUND ON TRAIL

HOME OF MONROE F. ELLIS

MONROE F. ELLIS

Considerable mystery is attached to the attempted assassination of Monroe F. Ellis, a wealthy lumber merchant and bank receiver, while he sat at dinner with his family in his handsome home at Basking Ridge, N. J. Detectives working on the case are completely baffled by the mystery and believe it will remain unsolved unless Mr. Ellis recovers. The shots were fired through the dining room window. A posse of men and bloodhounds are searching the woods for the would-be murderer.

The police regard as astonishing the fact that a man armed with a shotgun could approach Mr. Ellis' home within fifty feet, with unerring aim single him out as a target from among the members of his family, fire the shot and then disappear. The echo of the shot had scarcely died away when at least four persons were on their porches near by, peering all around and saw no human being.

HUSBANDS OF TWINS FIGURE IN SHOOTING

Earl Burkholder Is Killed by Charles Howman.

LOAD OF BUCKSHOT FIRED INTO HEAD

Burkholder Goes to Howman Home Armed and Seeking Burkholder. Finds Man Secreted in Parlor and Is Killed—Slayer Is a Brakeman on the Erie.

A Galion special to the Cleveland Plain Dealer of Sunday says:

Husbands of twin sisters figured in a shooting here, Saturday, and as a result, Earl Burkholder, a conductor on the Cleveland, Southwestern & Columbus railway lines, lies dead of a load of buckshot from a gun used by Charles Howman in self-defense.

Burkholder, as Howman admits, was acting on evidence obtained yesterday, casting suspicion upon the relations between Howman and Mrs. Burkholder, when he called at the Howman home this afternoon. Howman, fearing his purpose, locked himself in the parlor. Burkholder, according to Howman's story, broke down the door leading into the parlor and as he entered with a loaded revolver in his hand, Howman fired the shotgun, taking away the side of Burkholder's head and killing him almost instantly.

Early this morning Burkholder called Howman on the telephone and asked him to go to Burkholder's house. He added that he did not care to have to hunt up Howman.

As Howman was starting for town in his spring wagon he saw Burkholder approaching. Howman immediately went back home and warned his wife and three children that it would be dangerous for them to be in the house when Burkholder arrived. Mrs. Howman and the children went to the home of a neighbor and Howman went into the parlor to hide.

Burkholder searched the house and finally forced the parlor door, pulling a revolver from his pocket as he did so. Howman fired once and Burkholder fell dead on a couch. Howman then called the police station, said he had killed a man and was ready to give himself up.

When Police Chief Christian made the arrest Howman said to him, "Burkholder came to my house to do some killing and I beat him to it."

Howman, a brakeman on the Erie, did not appear greatly worried and had little to say about the circumstances of the case.

RAUHAUSER CRITICIZED FOR SPLITTING BILLS

Buys $1,575.50 Worth of Stone at Sales for City Officers Without Letting by Bids—Director Rauhauser Says Action Taken Is Customary and by Legal Advice.

Service Director S. R. Hauhauser of this city, is criticized by State Examiner F. A. Jackson, who filed his report with the state bureau of public accounting, Saturday. Mr. Rauhauser is charged by the examiner with splitting bills in violation of the law requiring purchases of $500 and over to be made by bid. He is charged with buying $1,575.50 worth of stone from the Cleveland Stone company and splitting the bills into this into amounts of less than $500 so as purposely to evade the law.

The local service director is also charged with the purchase of safes from the Monarch-Republican company, of this city, for the various offices of the city officials for $87 splitting up these bills in the same way and for the same purpose.

When asked about the charges against him, Director Rauhauser made this statement Monday:

"The only charge against me is that of irregularity in splitting bills and that has always been customary. The splitting of these bills was done under the legal advice of the solicitor. We fully looked into the matter and was advised to pay the bills in that manner.

"You might say, that we take issue with the state examiner as to the legality of the matter. I have done nothing without the proper legal advice."

VICIOUS BOAR GORES PAIR OF DRAFT COLTS

One Colt Is Dead and the Other Badly Injured.

Early Saturday morning, while former County Commissioner William H. Holverstott, residing three miles east of the city, went to do his chores, he found one of his fine draft colts dead and another, perhaps fatally wounded as a result of being gored by a vicious hog which had been turned into the orchard and which Mr. Holverstott did not know was cross.

Each of the colts had been gored once, presumably while standing. The hog, which weighed about 300 pounds, had evidently run under the colts and bored upward. It had left its vicious work some time during the night, for one animal had been dead several hours when found. The other colt, although very badly gored in the same manner, was still standing, but it had lost a great quantity of blood and was very weak.

Dr. J. T. Gruber, a veterinarian of this city, was called and sewed the wound in the injured animal which, he says, may survive. It is not known yet whether the colt is internally injured, but it is feared that the intestines are punctured.

Mr. Holverstott estimates his loss at $100.

Manley Bound Over.

Arch Manley, charged with enticing Ethel Van Lear, aged 17 years next April, was arraigned before Justice C. H. Conley. Monday. He entered a plea of not guilty to the charge against him, and was bound over to the grand jury. His bond was fixed at $2,000 in default of which he was sent to jail.

NO ORGANIZED BALL HERE NEXT SUMMER

Secretary Farrell's Action Means That, Fans Think.

MARION'S PLAYERS LAST YEAR NOW FREE AGENTS

Local Directors Brand Farrell's Ruling in Allowing Claims of Fourteen Diggers, Thus Making Them Baseball Free Lances, as Unjust—Money in Farrell's Hands.

A special from San Antonio, Texas, November 24, leads many Marion fans to believe that Marion will no longer be represented tin the Ohio State league, nor have organized ball here next summer. According to the special, Secretary J. H. Farrell, of the board of arbitration of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, which was in session recently in San Antonio, announced a number of rulings of the board. Among the rulings announced was one recognizing the claims of fourteen Marion players, who were declared free agents.

This list composes the entire roster of last season's club. When seen in regard to the matter, that afternoon, one of the directors stated that, in his opinion, the action of Secretary Farrell was an unjust one. The claim was allowed as a result of the players being back in their salaries, but there were but eleven players who have money due them and they are holding notes given by the local directors, but they have never prescuted them for collection.

An unjust feature of his act, the directors say, is that Secretary Farrell has in his possession $900, which was the draft money paid for Pitcher Berger, Outfielder Colligan and Shortstop Lallier. This draft money has been in the hands of Farrell since the middle of September and would more than satisfy the claims of the players, but he neglected to send the money to the local directors or president of the league so that the claims of the players could be satisfied. They say also that Secretary Farrell allowed Marion's reserve list of players.

Eddie Mechan, who was secured from New York by the local club for the $800 draft price paid for him, was turned back to New York, as was the $300 secured for the draft of Pitcher Goulait in payment of the claim against Marion for Mechan. Had Secretary Farrell been as prompt in sending the other draft money to the president of the Ohio State league, the local players would have been paid in full upon its receipt.

The local directors feel that they have been given a raw deal and that the reason the players did not get their money was due to Farrell's negligence in not forwarding the draft price of the three players drafted. The local directors were not notified of the local players having put in claims, and were never heard in the matter. They are of the opinion that it is the duty of Secretary Farrell to protect the rights of the club and that, unless he reconsiders the action of the board of arbitration and reverses his decision, it is hardly likely that a club can be built up here for next season.

The application of the Springfield club, of the Ohio State league, for membership in the Central league, was referred back to the league officials.

HUNTERS WELCOME AT THE A. A. PEEL HOME

Owner of Farm Invites Sportsmen To Visit Him.

PLENTY OF STABLE ROOM FOR HORSES

Places at Table for Hunters When the Dinner Bell Rings—Hunters Are Advised To Come Early and Avoid the Rush—An Unusual Invitation.

Marion county hunters, who are seeking the privilege of the sport of so many farms in this county, will find an open-hearted hospitality awaiting them down in Delaware county a short distance from Prospect.

A. A. Peel, of Radnor township, owns a farm of 150 acres, and he has written in this week's Prospect Monitor inviting all hunters to "take a day off and "drive out to my farm. We have horses in the barn" and when the dinner bell rings come to the house and get your dinner."

Mr. Peel's notice, which appeared in the middle of a column of other notices warning farmers about hunters was captioned, "Hunters welcome" and read in full as follows.

"I take this means of inviting all hunters who can take a day off to drive out to my farm, put their horses in the barn, which has been built for that purpose. They will find hay in mow over the stalls, and in the crib, and when the dinner bell rings, come to the house and get your dinner. These are good old Democratic times and I want everybody to have a good time. Come and there is plenty of game.

"A. A. Peel, Radnor Township."

When a Star reporter interviewed people who know Mr. Peel, Friday, it was learned that his place was a fair one to hunt. One man who knows Mr. Peel well said.

"His farm is just about as good as any other farm in this part of the county. Mr. Peel is a great big, open-hearted farmer. Some people regard him as peculiar, but he has a good heart nevertheless."

REMODELING OF THE Y. M. C. A. BUILDING

Will Be Completed for the Opening, January 1.

THE IMPROVEMENTS MOST EXTENSIVE

The Rearrangement of the Lower Floor, Which Is To Be Used for Association Purposes Hereafter, Will Greatly Facilitate the Work of the Big Institution.

The remodeled Y. M. C. A. building, which is now undergoing extensive repairs on the first floor and in the basement, will be opened to the public about January 1, if present plans do not miscarry, according to General Secretary L. A. Kaufman.

"We expect to have the work done by New Year's and have an opening at that time," said the secretary today. "We are bending every effort to get the remodeling completed by then."

The entire lower front of the building will be closed on the south side next to the alley, and an opening made in the center of the north room.

The general offices, together with Secretary Kaufman's private office, will be located on the first floor and those of the assistant secretary and physical director will be on the second floor, as at present. The educational and boys' departments will also be on the second floor.

Mr. Kaufman states that all senior membership cards will be handled on the first floor, in the general offices. For a distance of 100 feet, the present south room on the first floor will be made into three new bowling alleys. The north side will contain three or four billiard and pool tables.

Hardwood flooring will be laid on the first floor, with steel ceiling. The room is now being plastered.

The south side of the front will be arranged into a large reading-room for men. The check room will be located under the present stairway leading to the second floor from the street and facing the general office, where by the pressing of a single button any of the numerous lockers can be locked or unlocked from the general office. The man in the general office will be able to see from his position practically everywhere on the first floor. This is regarded as a distinct advantage over the present location of the general offices.

The decorating of the sidewalls will be in dark buff and that of the ceiling in light buff, with a fifty-four-inch wainscoting in green. The stairway will lead direct from the general offices to the baths and swimming pool. This, Mr. Kaufman says, will eliminate the long winding stairway that at present leads to the bath rooms from the second floor.

"The remodeled Y. M. C. A. will not necessitate the increasing of the present force," declared Mr. Kaufman. "We do not know exactly what the improvements are going to cost, but they will not exceed $3,000 on the first floor."

STEAMER AGROUND OFF SAMANA ISLAND--PASSENGERS ARE RESCUED

THE PRINZ JOACHIM

The Prinz Joachim, of the Hamburg-American Atlas service, is aground off Samana island, in the Bahama group. While the vessel may be lost, the passengers have been safely transferred to the steamship Seguranca, of the Wood line, which hurried to the wrecked steamship in response to wireless calls for aid.

The cause of the grounding will not be known until Captain Fey makes his official report to the company, but it is apparent that the steamship was about twenty-five miles off her regular course.

Samana Island, or Atwood's Key, is a small coral island about thirty miles from Fortune Island, where the Prinz Joachim was to make her first stop to take on the usual cargo of negro laborers, who work at unloading and loading the steamships in tropical ports. The island is about one mile wide and eight miles long, uninhabited and uncultured.

CHILDREN KILLED BY A TRAIN IN KANSAS

Are Grandchildren of Former Prospect Residents.

A recent copy of the Hutchinson, Kansas, News, contains an account of the killing of Elvin, aged three years, and Emma, aged twenty months, children of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Serist, of Hutchinson, and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Glass, former residents of Prospect.

The little ones attempted to cross the Santa Fe railroad track opposite their home, to join their father when they were struck by a fast express train and instantly killed, while the horrified father was making an attempt to save them.

Over 700 people attended the funeral, four little girls carrying the tiny casket bolding both the babies, and the procession was over a mile long. The mother of the children was before her marriage Miss Emma Glass and well remembered by many in this vicinity.—Prospect Monitor.

The Plain Dealer humorously intimates that Charles Dickens would turn over in his grave at the complimentary remarks his son has been making about Americans at the close of his lecture tour. Seriously, it may be said that the strictures of the elder Dickens upon American types he met in his journeys were the superficial impressions of a traveler in a new and crude country. His delineations were caricatures, and intended as such, for Dickens got his best effects with a broad brush; but there was a basis of truth back of his criticisms, and he chastened us for our own good and to some purpose. We owe the great novelist a debt of gratitude for his American Notes—for holding the mirror in front of us even if the glass was concaved and gave a distorted reflection. And it must also be remembered that the elder Dickens found in America, as his son has done, a host of worthy friends, who commanded his fervent and lasting admiration.

MRS. PATTERSON NEAR COLLAPSE

Great Strain Tells on Accused Woman.

I'M NOT A VAMPIRE, SHE DECLARES TODAY

Fair Prisoner Prays and Hopes for Acquittal.

Lawyers for Defense Claim That the Prosecution Hurts Its Own Case by the Scathing Denunciation of Mrs. Patterson—Jury's Verdict Is Expected at Any Moment—Many Rumors Afloat.

[BULLETIN.]

Denver, Col., Nov. 29.—Mrs. Gertrude Patterson will pay no penalty for killing her husband here September 25 last.

Th jury which has heard the evidence at 2:35 this afternoon returned a verdict acquitting her and upholding the contention of her attorney that she was justified in shooting Patterson because he sold her to Emil Strouss for $1,500.

Final Hours of Trial.

Denver, Col., Nov. 29.—Although Judge George Allen appeared in criminal court an hour earlier than usual today to receive any verdict that might be returned by the jury which tried Mrs. Gertrude Gibson Patterson on charge of murdering her husband, there was no indication at 8:30 a. m. that a verdict was forthcoming.

After deliberating three hours last night and continuing at an early hour today, the jury evidently had not been able to reach a verdict. The general impression was that up to 8 o'clock the jurors had made no effort to take any ballots.

Five verdicts are possible under the instructions of the court.

Murder in the first degree, carrying a punishment of death or life imprisonment; second degree murder, carrying a sentence of from ten years to life imprisonment; voluntary manslaughter, carrying imprisonment from one to eight years; involuntary manslaughter, carrying imprisonment in the county jail for not more than one year, and acquittal.

Inasmuch as Judge Carlton M. Bliss, of the district court, who died Sunday, was to be buried this morning, Judge Allen announced when court opened that unless a verdict was reported by 10 a. m. he would not be back in court to receive one until noon.

The defendant was near collapse during yesterday's entire trial. All the jauntiness displayed during the earlier stages of the trial, vanished when the prosecutor held the record of her life up to scorn. Physicians had administered stimulants to brace her for the ordeal and this was the only thing that prevented a collapse.

Crowd Gathers.

Long before 9 o'clock, today, hundreds of persons gathered outside the criminal court building waiting, in spite of a cold wind and freezing temperature, for a verdict.

That Mrs. Patterson fears a verdict of guilty was evident. After a sleepless night, she rose early and prepared to go to court should the jury report. In an interview, she made it clear that what hurt her most was the fact that Prosecutor Benson repeatedly referred to her as "The Vampire," she said:

"I have been subjected to the most brutal treatment that any person has ever been accorded on the witness stand. I don't mean women, but I mean any person. Benson called me everything that he could and, above all, a vampire. This hurts me worse than anything he said.

"But I am powerless. I brought my husband to Colorado against the will of all my people. They were all against me for bringing him here. But he was my husband and he was sick. I felt it was my place to stand by him.

"After all I did for that man, to have Benson stand there and shake his finger in my face and call me a 'vampire' is more than I can stand.

Prays for Acquittal.

"I will pray that I am acquitted. And if I am, I will be happy, but if I am not then it will mean another trial. I will spend every dollar I have to gain my liberty for an act that I feel I committed in self-defense. I shall try to be brave, but it is a pretty hard thing for a woman to keep up under the terrible strain which I have been under for the past week.

"I have faith in the jury and I am praying for an acquittal. But I am not a 'vampire.'"

The jury took its first ballot about 9 o'clock, but no inkling of its result was permitted to get out. There were many wild rumors. One had it that the jurors agreed on the defendant's guilt and only disagreed on the degree of murder. Another was that they were badly divided and voluntary manslaughter was the only chance of a compromise verdict.

Attorney Hilton expressed confidence, declaring that the "prosecution overplayed its hand" by denouncing the defendant so fiercely.

Mrs. Patterson spent the morning in the matron's quarters at the jail. The presence in the court-room yesterday of Robert Hilliard, who is playing a drama based on Kipling's "Vampire" poem, gave rise to a report that, if acquitted, Mrs. Patterson would join his company. This the actor denied.

It was stated at the county courthouse at 12:45 that the Patterson jury had agreed on a verdict, which would be returned at 2 o'clock. It is impossible to get any official confirmation of this. The jury at that hour was at lunch.

TAKING TESTIMONY IN TUTTLE MATTER

Prisoner Positively Identified by a Witness.

MISS MARY RODGERS REVIEWS THE ASSAULT

David Haberman Offers Some Startling Testimony as to the Statements of the Prisoner Prior to the Assault—Willing To Pay Penalty for Crime.

The trial of Almond Tuttle charged with assaulting Miss Flora Spicer with intent to ravish is progressing very slowly in the court of common pleas. At first it was thought that the trial would be disposed of quickly, but about twenty-four witnesses have been called for the prosecution and a number for the defense. As the examination of witnesses is moving very slowly, the trial may occupy three or four days.

Miss Spicer, the prosecuting witness, is in the court room accompanied by her sister and a little group of friends. She is an attractive young woman and has been the subject of a great deal of consideration on the part of those who sympathize with her while she is passing through a very trying ordeal. The prisoner, a big brawny fellow, occupies a position but a few feet from the girl he is charged with assaulting, and shows a great deal of interest in the evidence as it is adduced.

The jury viewed the scene of the assault, Monday forenoon, and immediately after dinner the examination of witnesses was taken up.

Sister on Stand.

Miss Mollie Spicer, an elder sister of the prosecuting witness, was the first on the stand. She testified to the circumstances following the assault, and to the condition of the clothing of the victim when she was brought home by a couple of women residing in the neighborhood. She reviewed the story of a visit Tuttle made to the Spicer home the day following the assault, and said that when her sister heard him asking to see her she stated that the voice was the voice of the man who had assaulted her and refused to see him. The witness found the questioning and the court-room scene embarrassing and confusing to a certain extent, but retained her composure quite well.

Miss Spicer was followed by her brother, a Cincinnati attorney, who testified to the possession of a letter received from his sisters in regard to the identity of the assailant. He was ordered to bring the letter to court.

Tuesday, Miss Mollie Spicer, who testified Monday afternoon, was again called to the stand and was questioned for a time.

Premeditated.

David Haberman was the next witness called Tuesday. Haberman in substance told the jury that Tuttle had frequently commented to him on the attractiveness of Miss Spicer, and, previous to the assault had stated that if it were possible for him to gain his ends with the young woman he would be willing to serve a term in the penitentiary. Later, in the course of a close cross-examination he stated that Tuttle had said he intended to attack Miss Spicer if the opportunity ever presented itself.

Benjamin Stoll followed Haberman, and testified to a few minor circumstances.

Miss Mary Rodgers, of West Mansfield, a bright and attractive young woman who was the companion of Miss Flora Spicer when the outrage was attempted, told the story of the evening in detail and proved an interesting witness.

Tuttle Identified.

In the course of her testimony she positively identified Tuttle as the man who committed the assault. She said she had seen him twice since the night of the assault, and pointed him out in the court-room, declaring emphatically that he was the assailant. The witness told of how she and her companion were struck in the back by the fellow, how she staggered under the force of the blow, but managed to keep her feet. Miss Spicer was caught and was being strangled by her assailant when she went to her assistance and received a heavy blow in the face. She then left her struggling and helpless friend in the clutches of the fellow and ran to a house in the neighborhood, where she secured assistance and returned to the rescue of Miss Spicer.

Officer Thompson.

Officer James Thompson testified to circumstances surrounding the arrest of Tuttle, his appearance at the police station in an intoxicated condition, and reasons why the man was taken into custody.

Following the officer, Miss Flora Spicer, the victim, was placed on the stand. In a broken, faltering voice and with tearful eyes she told a pitiful story of how she was knocked, brutally kicked and dragged from the street under a boxcar and there beaten, cursed and abused in spite of her plea to be released and her offer to give the man her purse. She stated that the man, in addition to striking, choking, kicking and cursing her, threatened repeatedly to kill her if she did not keep quiet.

Miss Spicer on Stand.

Continuing Miss Spicer recited how she fought hard for her release, screaming at intervals until her assailant pinned her hands with one of his and then proceeded in his attempt to ravish her. It developed that she was terribly excited and nervous when rescued by her friends and taken home. Some time was given to the circumstances of the visit of Tuttle to the Spicer home the day following the assault, and her recognizing the voice of Tuttle as that of her assailant when he was in an adjoining room from the one occupied by her.

In the course of her testimony, Miss Spicer identified Tuttle as her assailant.

As the examination continued the witness recovered much of her composure, and she bore up well under cross-examination.

Wednesday's Session.

The trial of Almond Tuttle, charged with criminally assaulting Miss Flora Spicer, will not be concluded before Friday or Saturday. The attorneys for the defense state that they will not be able to introduce all of their witnesses and court was adjourned at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for Thanksgiving.

Regardless of the rough weather, the court-room was packed, Wednesday, with spectators showing a great deal of interest in the proceeding.

The last witness for the prosecution, Mrs. Margaret O'Conner, was placed on the stand late Tuesday evening. Her testimony simply related to the general characteristics of the prisoner and his appearance in the eyes of those who knew him quite well.

The defense began submitting its testimony when court opened Wednesday, and Mr. and Mrs. John Miller were the first two witnesses called. Mr. and Mrs. Miller are related to the prisoner. They reside in the North End. They testified that they saw Tuttle pass their home about 8:15 o'clock of the evening when Miss Spicer was assaulted. The assault was committed about 8:35 as near as the time could be fixed by the victim and the other witnesses called.

As soon as the defense opened its side of the case an effort to establish an alibi was made manifest, and the next witness, Newton Childers, was introduced to assist in this direction.

Childers on Stand.

Childers stated that he left Tuttle in front of the Marion National bank building at 8 o'clock. Tuttle went east on Center street when he left Childers. Childers said that Tuttle was wearing a stiff hat and a dark suit of clothes and had been drinking.

Following the testimony of Childers, George E. Dwyer was placed on the stand to testify to the distance of the scene of the assault from the Marion National bank building, and the trend of the testimony was intended to show that an intoxicated man could not cover the distance in time to make the assault at the hour fixed. The evidence of the Millers was, of course, to show that Tuttle traveled north instead of east, according to the testimony of Childers.

As to Tuttle being intoxicated, Miss Spicer had testified Tuesday that the man who assaulted her had been drinking, as she smelled liquor on his breath. Another detail in her testimony and that of Miss Mary Rodgers was to the effect that the man committing the assault wore a stiff hat and a dark suit of clothes.

The next witnesses called were Miss Marie Orians and her mother, Mrs. Mollie Orians, and Mrs. Ida Wolbert. These witnesses were introduced to show that Tuttle was on east Farming street some distance from the scene of the assault at 8:15 o'clock, and was drunk.

Mrs. Orians and her daughter testified that Tuttle passed their home about 8:15 o'clock. Each said she was sure of the hour because they had counted the strokes of the clock at 8 o'clock and counted them again at 9 o'clock. They knew nothing of the crime having been committed at the time they made record of the time.

Mrs. Wolbert, residing in the same neighborhood, also counted the strokes of the clock at 8 o'clock and again at 9 o'clock. She testified that Tuttle stopped on her porch about 8:15 o'clock, and was in an exhausted condition.

MARY ANN STEADMAN IS GRANTED A PENSION

Will Receive About $1,550 in Back Allowance.

DIFFICULT TANGLE OF CIRCUMSTANCE

Mrs. Steadman's Husband Disappears During the Civil War and Is Never Heard From — Impossible To Secure Evidence of Death—Notice Is Received by the Widow.

After a series of efforts extending over a period of at least fifteen years on the part of senators and congressmen from Ohio, Congressman Carl Anderson has at last succeeded in securing a liberal pension for Mrs Mary Ann Steadman, of Marion.

Mrs Steadman, who is about seventy-five years of age and is in very poor circumstances, has received notice that she has been granted a pension which will give her in back pay about $1,550. The pension department has allowed her eight dollars a month from October 21, 1897, to April 19, 1908, and twelve dollars a month from the last date given until the present time.

There is an unusual story behind the granting of this pension. While the civil war was in progress, Mrs. Steadman's husband left his regiment without leave and unexpectedly appeared at his home. He remained but a short time, and before leaving bid his wife farewell forever, telling her that he intended to desert the service and that she would never see him again. When the war was over Steadman did not return home and he has never been heard of since.

After being very well satisfied in her own mind that her husband was dead, Mrs. Steadman married again, marrying a veteran of the civil war. In due time the second husband died.

Mrs Steadman then tried to get a pension on the claim of her first husband, but she was unable to present the required proofs of death, and it was possible that Steadman was living under an assumed name and drawing a pension under that name.

Many representatives in congress interested themselves in the case and tried to help the widow secure that which they felt sure was due her, but found it impossible. Some time ago, Congressman Anderson took the matter in hand and requested the department to waive the required evidence of death in view of the unexplained absence of Steadman. A special pension examiner was sent to Marion. The report of this official resulted in the granting of the pension as stated.

WOODEN SHOES TO PREVENT HOOKWORM

Problem Is Discussed by the Medical Record.

Arnold calls attention to the fact, repeatedly noted in Europe, that hookworm infection is principally a problem dealing with certain occupations, rather than an incubus upon the whole rural population — as appears to be the case in the southern states. He believes this difference is due to the greater efficiency of the footwear in Europe.

The machine-made shoes of America are attractive and cheap, but they have very poor wearing qualities, and what is the chief deficiency in the present discussion—shoes with sewed welts are never watertight. It is known that sand and dirt will penetrate the common shoe. This fact is conceded by those engaged in tanning and dying for they almost always wear, while at work, shoes with wooden bottoms.

The peasantry of southern Europe and many domestics and ordinary laborers use these wooden-soled shoes. These shoes are not the ordinary clogs. They are almost indistinguishable from ordinary shoes, the only modification being that they are somewhat larger so that a slipper may be worn inside to protect the sock. The author believes that if it were possible to popularize the use of such shoes in this country there would be a much more efficient protection against hookworm infection.—Medical Record.

IRA KERR MAKES A SERIOUS MISTAKE

Drinks a Soldering Solution Friday Night.

Ira Kerr, who is employed at the Maxwell garage, on Mill street, made a serious mistake in drinking from a bottle, Friday night, and as a result he is suffering from a burned stomach. Kerr intended taking a drink from a bottle, but accidentally got hold of a bottle containing a solution of muriatic acid and chloride of zinc, used for soldering purposes. He took a large swallow of the fluid and was not long in discovering his mistake. He rushed to the office of Dr. J. W. McMurray where he was given emetics and he was able to go home. He was up and about Saturday although he was burned internally.

WOMAN KILLS HER DESPOILER

Goes from Massachusetts to Cleveland To Slay Man.

Cleveland, Nov. 27.—Coming from Lawrence, Massachusetts, to avenge herself on the man who she alleged had ruined her, Mrs. Rose Dvorkin today shot down and killed Jacob Horovitz, a wealthy real estate dealer, on the street here. The woman was instantly seized and disarmed by persons near the scene of the shooting. She had fired but one shot, but Horovitz was dead when picked up and carried into a nearby drug store.

On being turned over to the police, Mrs. Dvorkin showed not the slightest remorse for her act.

Horovitz was married and had a family. Mrs. Horovitz was passing near where her husband was shot when he fell to the sidewalk.

"That looks like my husband," she said, and started toward the crowd. Friends, however, stopped her, assuring her she was mistaken.

Nearly 100 people witnessed the baptizing of six converts in a stream at Norton by Rev. A. R. Woodworth, the Baptist minister at Prospect, Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock.

Correcting an Inference.

A number of our employes mentioned to me Saturday that they felt hurt after reading an article in your last night's paper, page three, fifth column about Catharine Schmitz. The part that hurt was where you state, "The girl later went to work at the Susquehanna Silk Mills and while working there fell into bad company."

Therefore, I thought, out of justice to our people, I should write you a few of the facts. The lady in question did work here, but only for five weeks, was recommended to us by her brother-in-law. During the five weeks she was here, she never associated with any of our employees, male or female and she quit here stating we were too strict with the morality end of our business. Yours for truth.

T. T. Tierney,
Supt Susquehanna Silk Mills.

While the Star contained the reference quoted above, it did not say the young woman fell into bad company at the silk mills. We are sorry the wrong inference was possible.—Ed. Star.

HE DEFEATS A RIVAL AND WINS THE GIRL

Romance of Dwight Elias Price, of Boston.

PRICE IS VERY WELL ACQUAINTED HERE

Falls in Love with Miss Sophie Helferich, of Homesdale, Pennsylvania, Aboard an Ocean Vessel and Wins Her in One Day—Rev. Claude Coil Marries Them.

Defeating a rival and winning a girl in one day on a big ocean liner is the remarkable romance of Dwight Elias Price, of Boston, well known in this city, where he formerly resided for about three months during one summer when he was a student in the Ohio Wesleyan university, at Delaware.

The girl was Miss Sophie Helferich of Homesdale, Pennsylvania. She is now Mrs. Price, of No. 81 Massachusetts avenue, Boston.

Price, who visited his old college chum, Will Muntsinger, in this city a short time ago, having come up from Delaware in an automobile with Countess Eulenburg and her sister, a German baroness, had started on a two year's combined pleasure and business trip in Europe and Orient. That was last September. After visiting London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna, he received a telegram telling of his father's serious illness and hastened to catch the first steamer home. He caught the Pennsylvania at Hamburg.

Scarcely had Price got his luggage in his stateroom, when he passed Miss Helerich on the deck. She was accompanied by an obviously attentive young man, but that didn't matter. Price fell in love with the girl at first sight, sought and got an introduction and became engaged to the Pennsylvania girl in the space of one day.

When the Pennsylvania nosed into New York harbor and allowed her passengers to alight, November 25, Price and his bride went to Hoboken in search of a minister and, by a coincidence, the minister happened to be Rev. Claude Coil, formerly of this city, and a son of Mrs. K. J. Coil.

Price is vice president of the Rogers Wheel corporation.

BYRON GRAHAM LOSES HOME IN A BLAZE

House Is Burned to the Ground Saturday Evening.

A house belonging to Addison T. Redd at Newmans and occupied by Byron Graham, was burned to the ground, Saturday evening about 8 o'clock. Graham is a bachelor and at the time of the fire he was at the home of a neighbor. Neighbors noticed the flames and made an effort to check their progress, but without avail. All of the furniture of the house was burned and nothing whatever was removed. It is believed that the fire came about as a result of the explosion of a lamp. The loss is estimated at about $500. Insurance was carried on the building but none was carried on the furniture.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF BOARD OF HEALTH

A Report of the Health Officer Is Received.

A CASE INVESTIGATED BY HEALTH OFFICER

Animal Fed Bologna Dies in an Hour. Sample of Bologna Is Furnished Food Commissioner and He Finds It Free from Poison—Milk Tests in the City.

Th members of the board of health held a meeting, Monday afternoon, and allowed bills amounting to $157.32. Aside from the usual routine of business and general discussion relative to the health of the community, the report of Health Officer Bain was accepted and placed on file.

The report of the health officer was an interesting matter for discussion. Incorporated in the report, was the fact that the family of George Moore, of north Greenwood street, purchased some bologna at the meat shop of William Merkle, on east Center street, October 7, and twenty minutes after eating some of the bologna, the members of the family were taken very sick. The following morning the health officer investigated the case, and sent specimens of the bologna to the state board of health.

A letter received from the state board of health, October 14, stated that it was unable to secure cats for experimental purposes. October 19, a telegram received from the state board stated that an animal fed with the meat died an hour later. October 25, samples were submitted to S. E. Strode, state food commissioner, and a report from that office states that the bologna shows the absence of any poison.

The report of the local health officer also stated that he has tested the milk delivered by each and every individual to the Pure Milk company, and that, with one exception, all of the milk came up to the standard. He also tested the milk used in various restaurants, and found it in many cases lacking in fatty matter.

Health Officer Bain also stated in his report that he had been informed by the state board that immigrants from the cholera-infected districts of Italy are locating in Marion and urging that special care be taken.

A PATRIOT BUILDER.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for December 3 Is "Nehemiah Rebuilds the Walls of Jerusalem." Nehemiah 4.

If the present-day visitor to Jerusalem can escape the clutches of the professional guide, and get into the hands of one who really knows the city, and what arcaeological investigation has done there, he will naturally grow interested in the question of the walls of Jerusalem. Many problems hinge on the location of the walls. Thus the site of Calvary is partly determined thereby.

At several points about Jerusalem and in Jerusalem, the old walls may be seen, but they must be looked for under ground. Taken down into the cellar of a French Catholic school one day, I was shown a long stretch of wall. "This," said my friend, "is Nehemiah's wall. You notice how different it is from Herod's wall. The latter had well dressed stones, whereas these, as you see, while square at the edges, are rough and unfinished on the sides. The reason is plain. Nehemiah was building in haste. He was limited in time, in labor and in tools, so his work, while great and strong, bears this characteristic of poverty and haste wherever we find it."

The wonder of the wall to me was the immensity of the blocks. Nehemiah employed stones fully as large as those of the wall of Solomon's Temple. The blocks were from three to five feet long and two or three feet thick. The labor of preparing and placing them must have been immense. The best light I have had on this lesson is my recollection of the character of the wall that Nehemiah built. Naturally, as I stood beside this stonework, I had tender and admiring thoughts for the old Jews and their magnificent leader who, in a period of distress and persecution, yet wrought so nobly for the defense of their Holy City.

A Man as a Wall.

Great as was this work, still greater was the worker. We may marvel at the building of a new wall out of the rubbish heap of the old city, with the perilous work of quarrying out where enemies were most dangerous, and the slow, toilsome task of hauling the stone into position. Our greatest admiration, however, is reserved for Nehemiah, the master builder, who meant more to Jerusalem than all the stones that he had put into place. A city's best defense is not in brick and mortar and stone and timber, but in its men. A community that possesses a Nehemiah has stouter walls than those of old Jerusalem. This Nehemiah had a heart, a head and a hand for building. His soul caught a vision: his hand turned the vision into solid masonry.

It is easy to understand the devotion of a man who is building to protect his own family from death and disaster. Self-preservation is the law which then works. We must rise to higher levels, however, to find the explanation for such a man as Nehemiah, who deserted luxury and affluence in an oriental court, where he stood in the presence of the great king, for the sake of casting in his lot with his own fellow-patriots in their poverty and danger. Nehemiah was greater in the act of renouncing the court of Persia than when he stood, taskmaster and general, upon the rising walls of Jerusalem. His patriotism was equal to self-renunciation. It was splendidly selfless. In the world's honor roll of the heroes of patriotism, Nehemiah's name stands high.

What Is Your Trouble?

After the news of the plight of Jerusalem had been borne to him by travelers from Palestine, Nehemiah went about the court at Shushan with a woe-begone face. Anybody who saw him could read at once that he was in trouble. Now, everybody has trouble, but some are troubled by more troubles than others. One man wears a glum face because he lost a collar button when he was dressing in the morning; another is sour of visage because his breakfast was not well cooked; still another looks troubled because financial difficulties have overtaken him. The newspapers report entire communities as appearing dismal because their home team has lost the big game.

The kind of trouble that troubles a man is a fairly good index of his character. Nehemiah's sad countenance was because of his nation's pitiable plight. He was above moving among his race with a melancholy face simply on account of his own petty difficulties. His passion for his people was rooted so deeply in his soul that it bore the fruit of sorrow on his features. He did not think about it—like all truly great men in a crisis he was free from self-consciousness—but the very sorrow of Nehemiah was proof of his bigness. A nation's woe rested heavily upon his heart. He wept for the same reason that a greater Son of Israel was to keep a few centuries later. We should link Nehemiah, sorrowing over Jerusalem's plight, with that other supreme Patriot, who also wept over the need of the same city.

Since everybody must have some sort of trouble, let us have the big troubles, troubles that come to men of full stature, the troubles that are an index of chivalry, of spirits and Christliness of sympathy. If we weep, let it not be for our own petty trials, but for our nation's need and the world's woe.

When the Boss Notices.

Old Artaxerxes must have been a good king to work under. When his cup-bearer appeared sad of countenance, the king was not so engrossed in affairs of state that he had not time for kindly interest in the welfare of his retainers. He inquired solicitously for the cause of Nehemiah's sorrow. That is the kind of employer to serve, one who cares for the personal welfare of those under him. Anybody can work well for a man who has this spirit. The labor problem would be half solved if the bosses would but notice their men as men, with a care for their personal needs and sufferings. There is not usually a servant question in the kitchen of the mistress who is solicitous about the welfare of her helper, and who looks upon her assistant first of all as a fellow woman rather than as a servant.

Artaxerxes got the bottom of Nehemiah's trouble and asked how he could help. Instantly the cup-bearer shot a prayer to the King of kings in heaven before he presented his petition to this king upon his earthly throne. It is good statesmanship to bear in mind ever that over all rules God, and that He is still a very present help in trouble.

Wanted—A Hard Job.

In that atmosphere of sycophancy, it must have been a surprise to Artaxerxes to find that his cup-bearer's petition was not for a promotion or for a larger income, or for some increased honor, but rather for a hard job that meant first of all renunciation. Nehemiah told him how Judah, the capital of his heart, was laid waste. Then he asked that he himself might be sent to rebuild it. He could have petitioned for a royal commission to investigate and to issue necessary commands. Nehemiah, however, was not that sort of man. Had he been, the Sunday-schools of the world would not today be studying about him. He was a "send me" man, and that is why his place in history is fixed.

With oriental reverence for the memory and graves of his ancestors, he portrayed the plight of the city of his father's sepulchres, and the king's answer was sympathetic. All the necessary letters and privileges were given to Nehemiah, and he went forth upon his long journey by the Tigris-Euphrates valley until he could come again to Jerusalem, the city of Zion.

This was a man who did not deputize his work. He was not afraid to attempt things for himself. He wanted personal knowledge of conditions before he went ahead. He was no heedless agitator, to enter into denunciations and appeals without first being sure of his facts. Slipping as unostentatiously as possible into the city, making known his purposes to nobody, Nehemiah himself went out in the midnight darkness to traverse the heaps of rubbish which had once been the walls of Jerusalem. He was a commander-in-chief who first inspected the battlefield in person. What thoughts must have thrilled him, as he rode about that city, now in ruins, so eloquent with the deeds of his fathers!

Man Who Can Work with Men.

The psychological explanation of successful achievement in a common cause is what is known on the athletic field as "team work." To solidify the sentiment of many until it becomes as the sentiment of one is to insure success. Nehemiah said, "Come, let us build." He identified himself with the least of the returned exiles. The plenipotentiary from Persia's court made common cause with the poorest and humblest carrier of stone. He heartened the people with a vision of what might be, and fired their hearts with a resolution to do a common work in unison.

It has been proved many times that the first step in a successful building enterprise is not the raising of money, but the welding of the purposes of all who are interested into unity. A common mind in the people is the first requisite. Nehemiah did this. He interested all the people and even made use of the railings and tauntings of enemies to solidify the city's sentiment.

Good work angers bad men. That is why the enemies of Nehemiah, about whom we shall hear more later, did their utmost to destroy the project of Nehemiah. Yet despite discouragement and fear and real hardships, the people stood together with their great leader. Happy is the man who can so inspire with a vision his fellow-workers that they may stand fast to their original purpose. Harry Koopman has said—

"When I am dead
May this with truth be said,
On the rude stone that marks my lowly head
That, spite of doubt and indecision,
In spite of weakness, lameness, blindness,
Heart's treachery and fate's unkindness,
Neglect of friends and scorn of foes
Stark poverty and all its woes,
The body's ills that cloud the mind,
And the bold spirit bind,
Still through my earthly course I went,
Not disobedient
Unto the heavenly vision."

Wearing and Working.

Every real man must work, every real man must fight. The danger is that he will let the fighting interfere with the work. Nehemiah was too canny for this. He prepared his people for fighting. He divided the labor among the watchers and the workers. Every man who bore a trowel, bore also a sword. The fear of a foe was not permitted to drive the workers from the wall. While they watched, they worked. The work's the thing. No war is good war, no fighting is good fighting, that deters a man from carrying out his first life purposes.

Like a good general, with such a battle cry as the Texans have in "Remember the Alamo," Nehemiah fired his followers with the war cry "Remember the Lord, who is great and terrible, and fight for your brethren, your sons and your daughters, your wives, and your houses." He made men of them by rallying them to the great allegiances. He let the men fight over against their own homesteads. He grouped them by families, so that anxiety would not distract them from their work. All the strong human considerations were brought to bear in carrying out this great patriotic and religious enterprise. Always the leader set an example of fidelity, toiling through long weeks without once removing his clothes.

Thus it came to pass that as the wall was rising layer by layer there was being builded in the community a still greater defense in the hearts of the people, who were being stoutened and fired with renewed patriotism and religious devotion. The bulwarks of a city are in the souls of its citizens. That was the great wall that Nehemiah built.

IRVING BEDELL DUDLEY DIES IN BALTIMORE

Death Comes to a Former Marion Resident.

The following Baltimore special, of the date of November 27, to Tuesday's Cincinnati Enquirer, refers to a former resident of Marion. Irving Bedell Dudley lived in what is now known as the Taylor property on west Church street, this city, at the time his father was rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, and is well remembered by the older and middle-aged residents of Marion. The special reads:

Irving Bedell Dudley, United States ambassador to Brazil died at the Johns Hopkins hospital here today from heart failure while convalescing from another complaint.

Mr. Dudley was born in Jefferson, Ohio, November 30, 1861.

Mrs. Dudley, who is a patient at the same hospital, suffering from a minor complaint, was not told of Mr. Dudley's death.

A. E. Dudley, of Evanston, Illinois a brother of the ambassador, is expected here tomorrow to take charge of the body.

Ambassador Dudley consulted Dr. William F. Thayer, of this city, early in October, and then went to Washington on diplomatic business. The latter part of October he entered the hospital, where he remained until his death.

Prior to his diplomatic appointment Mr. Dudley's home was in San Diego, California. Besides his wife he is survived by one child, a daughter, who is in a boarding school in Illinois.

There's no place like home—and some married men are glad of it.

PEOPLE INJURED IN A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Willison Are the Victims.

HORSE IS FRIGHTENED BY AN AUTOMOBILE

Infant Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Self Is Found Dead in Bed. Death Is Due to Strangulation. Notes Picked Up at Richwood During the Week.

Richwood, O., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—An exciting runaway occured Monday morning just west of Richwood, as a result of which two people, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Willison, were seriously injured. The couple were driving to Richwood and when near the Cahill school-house the horse took fright at an automobile, driven by C. E. Kagay. The animal jumped to the side of the road, going over an eight-foot embankment and dragging the buggy after it. Mr. and Mrs. Willison were thrown out and the vehicle was completely demolished. Mr. Kagay stopped his machine and went to their assistance, finding them both seriously injured. Assisting them into his automobile, he brought them to the office of Drs. T. F. and F. M. Wurtsbaugh, where they were given attention. Mrs. Willison's right arm was fractured at the wrist and she was badly bruised. Mr. Willison suffered a cut just over the left eye, the middle finger of his left hand was broken and he received a scalp wound. While badly shaken up and suffering from severe nervous shocks, it is thought that the couple will soon recover from the effects of their unpleasant experience.

The child had been suffering from a cold, but her condition was not considered alarming. The parents were awake at 2 o'clock and her body at that hour wasapparently as well as usual. They awoke at five o'clock and were horrified to find the child lying dead between them. They immediately called Dr. S. J. Brown of Richwood, and while he found the body still warm, life was extinct and at the inquest which Dr. Brown, who is coroner of Union county, held later, he pronounced death due to strangulation. Mr. and Mrs. Self have been the parents of four children, only one of whom is now living. Funeral services over the remains of the little one were held from the late residence, Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Higgins, of Delaware, officiating. The revival meetings at the Christian church are attracting large congregations nightly and there have already been a number of conversions. The pastor, Rev. E. E. Pedicord, is assisted by Evangelist J. Bennett, of Macatawa, Michigan. The singing of Mr. Lester Castle, of Chicago, is a feature of the meetings and as both are men of national reputation it is likely that large crowds will attend the meetings. A free vocal class has been organized by Mr. Castle and at its first meeting more than forty persons joined the class. The chorus will render special music each night and its members represent the various churches of the village.

PANAMA CANAL COMMERCE.

The latest story with reference to the Panama canal is to the effect that the transcontinental railroads are seeking to prevent the capitalization of an independent ocean-to-ocean steamship company. Their purpose is said to be to capture the commerce of the canal for themselves and so maintain rates. This may be a cock-and-bull story designed to help push some subsidy scheme through congress or to drive the government into the building of freight ships. Or, it may be that the railroads in the building of which the government aided have really entered on this remarkable game to stifle competition. Their influence was long exerted to prevent the construction of a canal and it is, of course, possible that they are now taking a new tack for the accomplishment of their purpose.

Of course, it cannot succeed, and it is almost incredible that sane business men would give themselves over to an effort so futile! The people would at once cry out against such an iniquity and employ every means to prevent it. And the people, in these days of the new awakening, are a power before which no such palpable wrong can long stand.

Whatever the real character of this story, it is one which may well put the honest advocates of the people's rights on guard.—Columbus Dispatch.

MORROW COUNTY MAKES COMPLAINT

Marion and Other Counties Are Getting More Fish.

Morrow county has been ignored in the distribution of fish to stock the streams, even though applications have been filed repeatedly during the past few years. All the fish in the waterways in this county are either native of the local waters or are ones which have ascended the streams from other counties when the fish car from the state game station had made a distribution. Game Warden William Morton of this county is much chagrined to know that although he has twice made application for fish since he was appointed to his position that his request has never been acted upon by the state game warden, John C. Speaks. In the meantime the streams in Marion, Delaware, Crawford and Richland counties have been replenished with most gratifying results. These sportsmen who enjoy the pole and line in this county are well aware that there has been "no fishing" here for some years and when the season for this pleasure is at its height they are compelled to make long trips into neighboring counties. In his application for a supply of the finny creatures made early last fall Mr. Morton asked for black bass, catfish and perch.—Mt. Gilead Union Register.

In lime water localities, keep an oyster shell in your teakettle to receive the lime deposits.
